December 27, 1917.

Dear Mr. Andrews,

I have caused an exhaustive enquiry to be made into the matter of the breaking of the news of your son's death to your wife. I find, in the first place, that the Official List containing your son's name received from the Militia Department had your son listed as a Methodist. The proper official of this Department consequently notified the Methodist clergyman within whose District your house was situated. He reported that there was no such family within his knowledge. The other West End Clergyman was then notified and he also reported back to this office that he had no such family within his circuit. They then made further enquiries and found there were some families named Andrews who had formerly been Methodists but were now associated with the Salvation Army. Colonel Otway was consequently notified. Colonel Otway stated that there were families by the name of Andrews living in your vicinity who were members of the Salvation Army and assured us that he would arrange for an officer to visit the bereaved family and break the news.

The practice of this office is to wait for a certain time, depending upon circumstances, after arrangements had been made for the breaking of the news before sending out the official notice. That was done in this case. More than sufficient time was allowed to pass and then the official notification was sent out. You will appreciate the fact that there is absolutely nothing further that could be done by the Clerk at this office in charge of Casualty Notifications.

In the course of the investigation which I caused to be made in this, Colonel Otway was interviewed. He states that he sent his Officer at once to break the sad news. The first family the Officer visited had had a boy at the front but he was killed some time ago and they had no other son. The Officer consequently knew that it could not be that family. He then visited another family but they had no boy at the war. The third family by the name of Andrews belonging to the Army and resident in that section of the town had removed to Sydney and the Officer concluded that it was this family that had been bereaved. He, therefore, took no further action nor did he notify this Department that he had failed to locate the family whose boy was dead. Certainly, had he informed this Department of that fact, the clergymen of the other religious denominations would have been communicated with or private enquiries would have been instituted to discover the religious denomination of the family which resided at the listed address, as the practice is to place the matter in the hands of the clergyman to whose parish or congregation the bereaved family belongs. Under the circumstances of the case, there was no other conclusion at which the responsible Clerk at this Department could arrive, other than that the family belonged to the Salvation Army and that the Officer had attended to the breaking of the news.

I sympathise with you in your loss. From personal experience I know the sorrow of losing a child out of the home and deeply regret that, because of the error in the Official List received by this Department from Headquarters there should have been attending upon the notification of your son's death the harshness of the news being received by formal notice rather than by being communicated in the manner adopted, namely, by a clergyman or some intimate friend of the family.

-3-

Sincerely yours,

Colonial Secretary.

Mr. John Andrews,
38 Power St.

Lieut. J. M. Howley,
Deputy Paymaster.

Dear Sir:-

Re Private 2058 Walter Andrews,
48 Pleasant Street.

In May last I telephoned your office requesting that the above address be changed to 38 Power Street, and I was told that it would be done. In September Mr. Andrews, whose adopted son the above named Private is, called at the Record Office and also requested the same change in the address. Notwithstanding this, however, it appears that no change has been made and that Allotments and Notifications still go to 48 Pleasant Street.

Will you kindly see that the change is made and that a notice of same is sent to all places where Regimental Addresses are recorded.

Yours truly,

Has been changed.
